

18 Aug 2004

Mr Alan Lee
Eduwealth
21B Race Course Lane
Singapore 218739

Dear Mr Lee

PRAXIS GAME

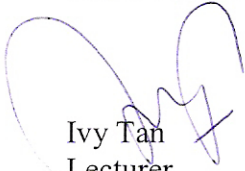

Thank you for organizing the exciting experiential sessions for my colleagues, teachers and pre-service teachers for learning economic literacy through the games which you and your team have designed.

We have evaluated PRAXIS to be a powerful tool to learn the interplay of economic forces. Through the game, players were able to experience the impact of the economic cycles. They also learn indirectly the forces of demand, supply, investments, risks, etc

It is a well packaged simulation game that is appealing and has various versions of complexity to customize to different age groups ranging from primary school to adults. The trainers too were able to provide good facilitation skills to allow players to enjoy the experience of the multi-faceted economic forces at play.

We wish you success in your endeavours.

Yours Sincerely

Ivy Tan
Lecturer

Humanities and Social Studies Education Academic Group
National Institute of Education
Nanyang Technological University